

Para 90 provides a proprietary blend of cleansing ingredients that helps expel parasites.

The Parasite Invasion

Internal parasites are organisms that live inside the body and feed off the host, leading to the onset of disease. Two classes of these invasive, inner parasites are:

Protozoa — microscopic, one-celled organisms that invade through contaminated food or water or from animal-to person or person-to person contact. Protozoa multiply in the body if left unchecked.

Helminths — worms that invade when undercooked meat and fish is consumed or from fecal-oral transmission. Helminths grow in size and length over time.

Tapeworms can live in the body for years and grow up to 80 feet in length.
